

5 Ways to Rid Your Kids of Rudeness

As a parent, you can always do things to make sure your children grow up to be polite and thoughtful:

- 1 Set a zero-tolerance policy. Teach children that it is never acceptable to be rude.
- 2 Find teaching opportunities. Use incidents of rudeness as opportunities to teach good manners.
- 3 Model politeness. Lead by example, your children are always watching you.
- 4 Show empathy. When children see things through the eyes of others, they're less likely to be rude.
- 5 Read positive stories to your kids. Share messages about positive behavior that counteracts rudeness.

From the experts at boystown.org